

Australian Research & Development Tax Incentives

The Australian Government offers some great incentives to innovative technology companies who undertake R&D as part of their business or growth strategy. In fact these companies could get up to 43.5% of R&D expenditure back from the government if they meet certain requirements. This video touches on some important considerations and processes that should be followed correctly in order to access available funds.

For more information, watch the full video or give us a call on +61 7 3012 9580.